Date: 30 Aug 18

About 1315 hrs on Sun 26 Aug 18, I had a conversation by phone with Name Given, whilst he was in LG (not A) working [redacted].

At the outset of the conversation his identity was confirmed through his DoB, National Insurance number and Service Number. The conversation was managed by myself so not to mention Classified objectives or names, however dates were mentioned and he was informed that the phone call was to establish whether a formal witness statement should be recorded in the future. Rapport was built by discussing the time that they worked together [redacted] Name Given was informed that should he feel uncomfortable or unable to talk on the phone as he had sensitive information to pass to on then investigators would attend his location.

Name Given confirmed that he was in Afghanistan in his role with SF during Feb 11. He could not recall any objectives or incidents and believed that due to his specific role he would have been held back from the Entry Force.

Name Given stated that at no time did anything happen whilst deployed that caused him concern or to believe that an offence had been committed. As far as he was aware his unit had been professional and always followed ROE in fulfilling objectives on the ground. He further opined that as APU were present on all his Objectives they would have raised any concerns. He could not recall any APU doing so with him.

Name Given did not witness or hear of anything that would have led him to make a referral to the Service Police

On conclusion of the phone conversation I was reasonably assured that Name Given was being truthful in that he had not witnessed anything that had caused him concern, the reasons being:

- OSW confirms that Name Given was not in the Entry Force for the N50 objective
- Name Given would be able to identify if an offence had been committed
- He understood the process and moral requirement of reporting an offence
- Name Given has no contact with old colleagues
- At no time during the conversation did Name Given say anything which caused me concern
- Name Given has been given contact details should he recall anything else
